

COACHING CHAMPIONS

“Coaching is the universal language of change and learning.”
CNN

What do coaching managers do?

*“I have come to the frightening conclusion;
I am the decisive element in the office.
It is my personal approach that creates the climate.
It is my daily mood that makes the weather.
As a coach, I possess tremendous power to make an employee’s life miserable or joyous.
I can be a tool of torture or an instrument of inspiration
I can humiliate or humour, hurt or heal.
In all situations it is my response that decides whether a crisis will be escalated or de-escalated and an employee humanized or dehumanized.”*

The constantly changing and utterly unpredictable world in which we find ourselves present business leaders with complex challenges - often unprecedented challenges - that needs new innovative and flexible solutions.

Coaching has proved to provide a host of benefits to organisations such as increased loyalty, connection and commitment. Coaching helps an employee feel comfortable with management and encourage open communication, resulting in a positive work experience.

In addition, coaching guides an employee along a career path resulting in an employee well versed on company expectations.

This one day workshop is for you, if you want to:

1. what makes coaching different to leadership or management skills?
2. what is the role of the coaching manager?
3. adopt a coaching style that meet the needs of your team;
4. coach in a team context;
5. coach and relational systems;
6. understand how to use coaching skills in the workplace; and
7. learn core coaching skills that you can apply in the workplace.

This is day 1 of an accredited training course; next steps for accreditation will be discussed during the workshop.
